It was Christmas Eve, and the Smith family was busy getting ready. Mrs. Smith baked gingerbread cookies while Lucy and Tom decorated the Christmas tree with lights and ornaments. After dinner, they sang carols and drank hot cocoa before going to bed, excited for Christmas morning.

On Christmas Day, they woke up early and had pancakes with berries and hot chocolate for breakfast. Then, they drove to their grandparents' house. The streets were full of Christmas lights, making the trip feel magical.

At Grandma and Grandpa's, everyone enjoyed a big Christmas lunch with roast turkey, mashed potatoes, and cranberry sauce. Lucy and Tom played with their cousins while the adults chatted. After lunch, they exchanged gifts. Grandma told stories about Christmas traditions from her childhood, which made the day even more special.

For the Smith family, Christmas was about love, happiness, and being with family.

1.What did Mrs. Smith baked on Christmas Eve?

2.What did the family have for Christmas lunch?

3.Who helped decorate the Christmas tree?

4.How did the family feel about Christmas morning?

5.What special stories did Grandma tell after lunch?
