Today was the annual "Save Our Shores" campaign. Since my sister was busy, I joined the event (e.g.) myself. When I arrived, the beach was covered in plastic waste. The other volunteers and I divided (1)_____ into small groups to tackle different areas.

My group was responsible for the rocky shore. My friend, Sarah, found a discarded fishing net. (2)_____ was entangled with some driftwood, so she had to cut it loose (3). Meanwhile, two boys from another school picked up over fifty plastic bottles. They looked very proud of (4)_____.

By noon, the organisers provided some sandwiches for us. Although the bread was slightly dry, (5)_____ still tasted delicious after our hard work. One of the organisers, Mr. Lam, didn't eat anything because he was busy directing the trucks (6)_____.

After five hours of sweating under the sun, the beach finally looked pristine again. All the participants were exhausted, but we truly enjoyed (7)_____ while protecting the environment. My mother was surprised when I returned home. She praised (8)_____ for being so responsible.
